

associative ionization (in mass spectrometry)

This occurs when two excited gaseous atoms or molecular moieties interact and the sum of their internal energies is sufficient to produce a single, additive ionic product.

See also chemi-ionization.

1991, 63, 1547