

baffle chamber (in atmospheric chemistry)

A chamber used in incinerator design to promote the settling of fly ash and coarse particulate matter by changing the direction and/or reducing the velocity of the gases produced by the combustion of the refuse.

1990, 62, 2175