

baghouse (in atmospheric chemistry)

An installation which contains many bag filters in parallel so that the resistance to air flow in a large installation is not seriously increased by the addition of these controls.

1990, 62, 2176