

calibration (in analysis)

The set of operations which establish, under specified conditions, the relationship between values indicated by the analytical instrument and the corresponding known values of an analyte.

See calibration material.

1989, 61, 1662