

coherent scattering

Scattering is coherent whenever the phases of the signals arising from different scattering centres are correlated and incoherent whenever these phases are uncorrelated.

1983, 55, 932