

chelating polymer

Polymer containing ligand groups capable of forming bonds (or other attractive interactions) between two or more separate binding sites within the same ligand group and a single atom.

Note 1: Chelating polymers mostly act as ion-exchange polymers specific to ions that form chelates with chelating ligands of the polymer.

Note 2: See also chelation.

2004, 76, 895