

day

Non-SI unit of time, $d = 86\,400$ s. The day is not exactly defined in terms of the second since so-called leap seconds are added or subtracted from the day semiannually in order to keep the annual average occurrence of midnight at 24:00 on the clock.

G.B. 111; 1996, 68, 968