

effective thermal cross-section

A fictitious cross-section for a specified reaction, which, when multiplied by the 2200 metre-per-second flux density, gives the correct reaction rate for thermal neutrons.

See also microscopic cross-section.

1994, 66, 2517; O.B. 218