

enzyme induction (in medicinal chemistry)

Process whereby an enzyme is synthesised in response to the presence of a specific substance or to other agents such as heat or a metal.

2004, 76, 1051

N.B. See also the entry for "enzyme induction (in general chemistry)"

IUPAC Compendium of Chemical Terminology 2004