

flame-in-tube atomizer (in spectrochemical analysis)

An atomizer in which hydrogen, used as carrier gas, is partially combusted in the inlet arm of a T-shaped tube furnace by introducing a limited amount of oxygen or air.

1992, 64, 2647