

initial rate method

A mode of measurement in a kinetic method of analysis, in which the initial reaction rate is determined (usually by the slope method) and utilized for the measurement of concentration.

1993, 65, 2296