

in-laboratory processing (in analytical chemistry)

The selection, removal and preparation of the test (or analytical) portions from the laboratory sample.

The processing may include a reduction in the size of the unit(s) (division) and particle size (reduction), as well as mixing to achieve homogeneity.

1990, 62, 1204