

latent period (latency) (in medicinal chemistry)

1. Delay between exposure to a harmful substance and the manifestations of a disease or other adverse effects.
2. Period from disease initiation to disease detection.

2004, 76, 1055