

laser-jet photochemical technique

Technique by which high concentrations of excited states are generated in a jet, permitting the readily determination of spectroscopic properties of those states.

2007, 79, 363