

microcarrier (in biotechnology)

A small, beaded material, derived from silica, glass, dextran or similar materials, used for the immobilization of biocatalysts, or as a support for the culture of anchorage-dependent animal cell lines.

1992, 64, 160