

relative counting (in nuclear chemistry)

A measurement in which the activity of a test portion is derived from the ratio between the count rates observed for the test portion and for a radioactive source of known activity.

1994, 66, 2525