

resolving time correction (in nuclear analytical chemistry)

Correction to be applied to the observed number of pulses in order to take into account the number of pulses lost during the resolving time.

1982, 54, 1551