

segregation

The process that differentiates the composition at an interface or surface from the average or bulk composition.

Note:

The composition of the segregated phases need not be uniform, for example, when concentration gradients are established in the phases.

1994, 66, 590