

specific detector (in chromatography)

A detector which responds to a single sample component or to a limited number of components having similar chemical characteristics.

1993, 65, 849